Donggyu Joo

Senior Machine Learning Scientist | Samsung Research

Seoul, South Korea | jdg10126@gmail.com

Research interests

Computer vision, vision-language models, image-text retrieval, model compression, knowledge distillation, generative modeling, and on-device AI.

Experience

Samsung Research, Samsung Electronics | Seoul, South Korea
Senior Machine Learning Scientist | September 2022 - Present

• Developed and shipped eight on-device AI models, including Gallery Search and unintended touch detection, deployed across tens of millions of Galaxy devices with my name credited as their developer.

• Develop on-device visual recognition and vision-language models for semantic photo search in Galaxy Gallery.

• Build multimodal data curation, labeling, filtering, training, and evaluation workflows.

• Optimize and deploy models on Galaxy devices, including TFLite conversion, latency tuning, on-device validation, and debugging edge cases from user feedback.

• Develop sequential classification models for unintended pocket-touch detection with real-time mobile CPU inference.

• Lead a team of six engineers across data, modeling, evaluation, and release in collaboration with product and engineering teams.

Education

KAIST - Ph.D. in Electrical Engineering | March 2018 - August 2022
Thesis: Effective Deep Neural Network Compression Based on the Network Pruning
Advisor: Prof. Junmo Kim

KAIST - M.S. in Electrical Engineering | September 2016 - February 2018
Thesis: Unconstrained Control of Feature Map Size Using Non-integer Strided Sampling
Advisor: Prof. Junmo Kim

KAIST - B.S. in Electrical Engineering | February 2013 - August 2016
Summa Cum Laude

High School
Korea Science Academy of KAIST (KSA) | 2010 - 2013

Skills

Python, PyTorch, TensorFlow, TFLite, Git; model optimization, quantization, distillation, data curation, robustness evaluation, and on-device deployment.
